Facility Bio: Mustang's athletic program is very respected throughout Oklahoma. At the secondary level, the district boasts more than 75 teams. Over the past two years, many of the district's student athletes have signed partial or full scholarships with universities around the country.

Students also have the opportunity to pursue their interests in one of the school's arts or specialty programs. Mustang's woodworking program is one of less than a dozen left in the state and DECA, an association of marketing students, provides real-world experience through community projects. Mustang is one of the few districts in the state to implement a JROTC program. In addition, Mustang is also a leader in the arts, with students bringing home honors in band, choir, graphic arts and more.

Mustang students also spend time giving back to the community. In 2008, the entirely student-led Relay for Life event raised more than $70,000 for cancer research, setting a new school record for the event.
